Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please do not allow Microsoft to continue its disregard for the United States justice system by concession. Microsoft is no longer in a position of compromise; the company has been found to have abused its monopoly powers. This settlement approach with Microsoft seems as ludicrous as a child negotiating his way out of a spanking by brokering a deal that he will no longer "get" to eat his broccoli.

Microsoft has been and continues to be anti-competitive. Their sights are now set on Linux, which stands, perhaps, as the last best chance for a competitor to rise in the market and challenge Microsoft's stranglehold on innovation and value. Please don't let Microsoft fleece us again.

Sincerely,

Michael Frost
